Check, please! Feed your hunger for great eats.

29 | LAUNCH A BLOG

tumblr.com

This is blogging for slackers. Posting pics, links to your favorite sites, and maybe a line of text requires exactly zero tech know-how. We had a post up in 90 seconds.

30 | FIND 800 NUMBERS

hardtofind800numbers.com

No more digging around a company website to find a buried 800 number. This site organizes companies alphabetically and lists direct lines for specific departments.

31 | BACK UP FILES

mozy.com

Download software from Mozy and select the e-stuff you want to back up. Mozy continuously monitors your computer, saving changes. It'll store two gigs for free, or you can get an unlimited account for $4.95 a month.

32 | TWEAK PHOTOS LIKE A PRO (FOR FREE)

picnik.com

Just upload pics and get to work sharpening, resizing, and color correcting. When you're satisfied, you can save the image to your PC, e-mail it, print it, or post it on Flickr.

33 | SEARCH SMART

mahalo.com

This search engine's results have been compiled by humans, not generated by computers, so you actually get useful links. We searched for 'hiking' and the results page included their top seven links to places like the National Park Service, as well as how-to links and tons of gear-related sites, among other things. All spot-on.

34 | TRACK BLOG BUZZ

technorati.com

38 | SAVE ON FARES

yapta.com

Airlines will refund the difference if prices drop. Give Yapta your flight details and it keeps an e-eye on the ticket price. If the fare sinks, you get an e-mail alert that also tells you how to claim a refund.

39 | ACT NATIVE

freetranslation.com

Visit this site, which translates English words and phrases into 10 different languages. Type in key phrases and hold your own anywhere.

47 | DO GOOD

kiva.org

Log on and lend as little or as much money as you like to entrepreneurs in developing countries. You could help a 38-year-old mother in Senegal stock her retail store with lemons, palm oil, and brooms or a 29-year-old man in Lebanon open an auto repair shop. You'll receive photos and notes from the person you sponsor, and Kiva generally gets your money back within a year.

48 | RESEARCH A RENTAL

rentometer.com

Plug in your address, the number of bedrooms, the number of units in your building, and how much the digs cost; Rentometer will tell you if you're paying more, less, or the average for your neighborhood.

49 | RESEARCH A NEW HOUSE

trulia.com

Click on a home listing and Trulia spits back vital stats about the neighborhood, as well as tips from local real-estate gurus. Enter a city and state in the "heat map" feature to

41 | TRAVEL AT THE 11TH HOUR

lastminutetravel.com

Last Minute Travel lists the best depart-ASAP deals—from $99 hotel rooms in Miami's hot Art Deco district to $79 round-trip tickets mid-winter from Chicago (brrrr... to Los Angeles (ahh...)).

42 | PICK A SEAT

seatguru.com

Flying American on a 757? Seat Guru leads you to a colorful diagram of the plane: green seats, good (lots of leg room, laptop outlet); red seats, bad (next to the restroom...). Choose accordingly.

43 | PACK LIKE A PRO

dontforgetyourtoothbrush.com

Select your type of travel: cruise, camping, beach, business trip, whatever. Up pops a checklist of things to do ("book rafting trip") and pack before you leave. Tick off items you want to include, then save your changes and click print—or just wait for the e-mail reminders to pop up in your inbox.

53 | PREP FOR SHITTY LUCK

stuffsafe.com

We hate to be a downer, but you really should keep an inventory of your home in case of theft or fire or other unexpected badness so you can prove to your insurance company that you actually had what you say you had. Create an account here, then start cataloging big-ticket items (like your computer); work down to less pricey items (like your chick-lit library). For each, you'll be prompted to describe the item and enter the date of purchase and approximate replacement value.

54 | SPLIT BILLS WITH ROOMIES

billshare.org

Enter your roommates' names as well as the bill amounts. Bill Share does the divvying and e-mails everyone to tell them how much they owe you. They'll stop getting reminders when you log on and indicate they've paid up. Unfortunately, it won't keep your roomie from leaving dirty glasses in the sink.

55 | GET OUT OF A CAR LEASE

swapalease.com

If you unexpectedly need to go from Mini Cooper to Minivan but you still have a year left on your lease, this site is a godsend. Enter info about your car and the lease terms into a searchable database. Interested co-pilot.

45 | FIND YOUR WAY AROUND A CRAZY CITY

hopstop.com

What do Boston, Chicago, DC, New York, and San Francisco have in common? They all have eye-crossing public transportation systems. At HopStop, type in your starting point and destination, then click a button to find out how much a taxi ride will cost. Press another button to get subway, bus, or walking directions. You can even have the directions texted to your cell phone. More cities coming soon.

46 | GAUGE FLIGHT DELAYS

EARLY

flightwait.com

Before you leave for the airport, enter your travel deets. You'll get a map showing your flight route. If it's a green line, you're looking at 15 minutes or less; yellow, up to an hour; red, one to two hours; and black, more than two hours.

workrant.com

see a color-coded Google map of average home prices in each county.

50 | KNOW THY NEIGHBORS

rottenneighbor.com

Before finalizing the deal on a new home, enter your zip here to read user complaints about 4 a.m. parties or parking-spot poachers.

51-52 | BECOME A MONEY WHIZ

mint.com and wesabe.com

These sites securely upload your bank statements and credit card expenditures so you can see how much you're blowing on clothes and eating out. All your info is presented in pretty (disturbing) charts and comes with tips on how to improve your habits. Mint's advantage: It analyzes your interest rates and tells you where you can do better. Wesabe's advantage: Overwhelmed? Click on "I'm freaking out" and a slideshow of kittens pops up.

takers contact you directly, then the site brokers the deal (via the finance company) for a fee.

56 | CALCULATE SHIPPING

postcalc.usps.gov

Not sure how much to charge to ship the gently used ThighMaster you sold on eBay? At the United States Postal Service's site you can enter the package size (from postcard to large box), approximate weight, origin, and destination. The calculator spits out an on-the-money figure.

Tough day at the office? Go here and submit a rant or click on "Top 10 Rants" to instantly feel better about your own shit day.

65 | DITCH THE CHANNEL GUIDEmeevee.com

MeeVee not only displays your local TV listings but also creates a customized guide based on your viewing habits. Just reveal your guilty pleasures when you register—Take Home Chef, The Office, Jolie-Pitt gossip—and it will give you personalized picks.

66 | GET A GOOD SONG STUCK IN YOUR HEADslacker.com

Tell Slacker your favorite artists, and this music site builds a just-for-you radio station. As songs play, click on "heart", "skip", or "ban", and Slacker will fine-tune the station on the fly.

67 | SEE LIVE MUSICbeethere.net

Upload artist names from your iTunes library to BeeThere, which tracks shows in more than 800 cities, to receive an e-mail when your faves book a local venue.

68 | SATISFY YOUR INNER MUSIC GEEKemusic.com

No crappy Top 40 hits here—eMusic hocks only songs from independent labels. Tracks go for as little as 33 cents, and there are 3.5 million to choose from, including singles by the New Pornographers, Spoon, and Johnny Cash.

69 | SEE MOVIES YOU'LL LOVEmetacritic.com

This site compiles film reviews from hundreds of newspapers and magazines and gives each movie a Metascore. Skip any that score less than 65. Or at least wait for them to pop up on Netflix.

70 | PLAN A PARTYmypunchbowl.com

Pick a date by polling guests (votes of those you designate VIPs hold more weight). Once you've nailed a date, a Save the Date e-mail goes out. Then comes the full invite, followed by an after-party message board where hungover attendees can upload photos and videos of the event.

71 | FAKE IT IN A BOOKISH CROWDdailylit.com

Read the entirety of War and Peace—or any of the 750 other books available—via daily e-mail snippets that take less than five minutes to get through. Complete books, from classics to Skinny Bitch, are $5 to $10.

72 | PICK A SPOT TO MEET UPmezzoman.com

Enter your address and your friend's address. Then select from options, like bars or coffee shops. Click on "Go" and up pops a map and directions to the perfect meeting point halfway between.

73 | PLAN SEATING ARRANGEMENTSsimpleseating.com

Create a new event on Simple Seating and add names to the guest list. You can use the clever drag-and-drop tool to design your seating area (four round tables of 10, or whatever) and populate the seats with combos of friends or coworkers.

74 | READ ONLY THE BEST ARTICLESbrjrit.com

You read WH cover to cover each month. But how about, say, Mother Jones or The New York Review of Books? This site takes long articles from more than 75 magazines and newspapers and boils them down to 100-word summaries. Then it rates them from 0 (don't bother) to 3 (exceptional). Click a link to read the entire article if it's been posted online.

75 | MAKE PLANS FOR THE WEEKENDupcoming.yahoo.com

Enter your city and state and get back a list of all things local, from concerts to conferences to street fairs to eBay-sales classes.

76 | SAVE ON SHIPPINGfreeshippingon.com

This site scours the Web and lists which major sites charge exactly zero for shipping. Let the online spree begin.

77 | FIND AFFORDABLE ORIGINAL ARTugallery.com

This site displays and sells original art created by students from more than 89 universities. The site

81 | NEVER SPACE ON A B-DAYjackcards.com

Key in the birthdays of your friends and family and choose a card that suits each one. When the time comes, Jack Cards mails you the card to sign and send. Cards start at $1.50, and shipping is 49 cents (or free if you spend more than $30).

82 | BROWSE CRAIGSLISTlistpic.com

Click on your city and whatever "for sale" category you're interested in, and Listpic creates a grid of photos. And get this: The price pops up when you mouse over the photo and the name of the item. It's tons easier than scrolling vague descriptions.

83 | CASH IN A DUD GIFT CARD*86 | BUILD YOUR OWN AREA RUGflor.com

This site lets you design a rug using 19.7-inch-square carpet tiles. Enter the size of the space you want to cover; Flor calculates how many tiles you need. Click and drag different colors of tiles onto a grid so you can see what the finished product will look like. When the tacky-backed squares arrive, simply arrange them on the floor. Tiles range from $7 to $17 apiece.

87 | DECIPHER DIMENSIONSsizeeasy.com

Shopping online can make it difficult to visualize an object's actual size. Enter dimensions on this site and you get a 3-D image next to other objects for scale.

accepts only 25 percent of its submissions—so you're not going to end up with some wannabe's nursery school finger-painting.

78 | GET GIFTS YOU LOVE

thethingsiwant.com

Create an account, then drag "the things I want" button to your bookmarks bar. Next time you fall in love with an item, click the button to add it to your list. It works like a bridal registry: Friends can search by name to find your wish list, which is displayed with pics, prices, and a click-to-buy link.

79 | BUY HIM AN IRONIC T-SHIRT

rumplo.com

Sick of that pit-stained tee he puts on the second he gets home from work? Replace it with something from this site. Designs by artists around the world go for $20 and up and range from simple to political to inspirational. Not a cheesy one in the bunch.

80 | SHOP SALES

slickdeals.net

Each day, this site posts the best deals on the net—everything from sneakers to speakers to pots and pans.

swapagift.com

Swap a Gift will turn your stash of unused, never-to-expire gift cards into usable loot. For a $3.99 fee, you can trade your lameass card (from $25 to $500) for one you'd actually use. Or cash it in for 60 to 70 percent of the card's value.

84 | BUY CRAFTS THAT AREN'T

CRAP

etsypickoftheday.blogspot.com

You probably don't need their pick of the day—vases, bracelets, you name it—but they're all one of a kind, so you can sorta justify it.

85 | FRAME ANYTHING

PERFECTLY

americanframe.com

Enter your print size, choose a mat and frame style (they have more than 330) and place your order. Putting it all together takes almost no skill, but the results are gallery-worthy.

88 | STALK FEDEX

trackmyshipments.com

Register, then forward all order confirmation e-mails to track@trackmyshipments.com. They'll send you e-mails or text messages on the package's status and location.

89 | DESIGN A NEW FAVORITE

ROOM

floorplanner.com

Generate a blueprint by entering your room's dimensions, then click and drag your items, such as furniture and doors, onto it. Sign up for a free account—the premium options are better suited for contractors.

90-91 | MUST-READ SHOPPING

BLOGS

makingitlovely.com

Go there now for home decor ideas and resources.

92 | DESIGN A WORKOUT MIX

convertalot.com/bpm.html

The best songs for high-intensity cardio should be in the 120- to 150-beat-per-minute (bpm) range. To find out if a song hits the mark, cue it up and click your mouse to the beat. This site measures and displays the tempo in real time.

93 | RUN ON VACAY

run.com

Your gym membership may not work everywhere, but your legs do. Search this database of running routes throughout the world. Displayed on a Google map, they can be sorted by length, difficulty, and other user-rated criteria.

94 | FIND A NEW FITNESS TOY

power-systems.com

Choose a goal (jump higher, run faster), and this site suggests the best gear. We clicked "improve agility and quickness" and discovered the Reaction Ball ($10). It bounces unpredictably, so you have to make split-second movements to snag it.

95 | FIND CYCLING ROUTES ANYWHERE

bicycling.com

Select your region, and the gurus from Bicycling magazine (published by Rodale, which also publishes WH) will tell you some of the greatest routes near you.

96 | TAKE A HIKE

trails.com

With 40,000 routes and printable topo maps, this site is worth the $50-a-year price tag.

97 | FIND CAMP

reserveamerica.com

Search for an outdoorsy place to crash based on your preference: cabin, tent, or RV. Narrow down based on proximity to things you want, like outdoor showers and fire pits.

98 | DROP IN ON GREAT POWDER

onthesnow.com

This site tells you when ski resorts open and how much snow they're expecting. Just click on any state to get up-to-date trail conditions.

99 | GET READY FOR THAT RACE

runnersworld.com

Get a custom training plan for your next race. The free Smart Coach tool from Runner's World (another Rodale magazine) asks you for some basic info and instantly creates a program that takes you up to race day.
